Edgerton Hospital's Wound Clinic

Passionate People, Compassionate Care

Welcome to Edgerton Hospital's Wound Care Clinic.

A wound is a break in the skin that is caused by disease, injury, poor blood supply to the wound area, a surgical incision, poor nutrition or other causes. The body is often able to heal wounds through a natural process. At times, however, some wounds — big and small — don't heal the way they should. At Edgerton Hospital's Wound Care Clinic, our talented team will heal you quickly and give you back the quality of life that you deserve.

Why Choose Our Wound Care Clinic?

Everyone's body heals differently and various factors can affect and disrupt the healing process. If your healing process is disrupted, you may be left with sores, wounds or infections that are unable or are very slow to heal. That's where we come in.

At Edgerton Hospital, we take pride in the fact that because we are small, we are able to form a close bond with each patient that we serve. It's a combination of trust and expertise that allows our team to heal even the deepest of wounds. In addition:

- We offer flexible appointment times
- There's no need to travel when you can receive great care close to home
- Our team understands the importance of communication, no question will go unanswered

Services Offered

Our certified wound providers offer extensive treatment, including:

- Evidence based wound care
- A comprehensive evaluation
- Wound cultures
- Vascular studies
- ABI measurements
- Conservative sharps debridement
- Home wound vac management
- A comprehensive care plan
- Pain and nutrition management plan
- Physical therapy recommendations
- Infectious disease and diabetes management
- Extensive patient education to manage the care of wounds and prevent wound recurrence

In addition, our staff will work closely with the referring physician to ensure that any underlying factors and health problems contributing to the delay of healing are addressed.
